Introduction

Wick: Trade Anything Anywhere

Wick is a mobile-first, self-custodied trading application built on Hyperliquid. The mission is to simplify on-chain trading by leveraging a user friendly interface, without compromising power. Today, users can access spot, perpetual, HIP-3 and prediction markets seamlessly through a single account, without managing multiple wallets.

Wallets are self-custodied through Privy, giving users full ownership of their funds at all times. The application is currently available in beta on iOS and Android, with development focused on expanding integrations, refining usability, and preparing for public release.
