are the contractual right to perceive future music royalty income that is generated by various types of intellectual property rights/copyrights. Neither music royalties nor royalty interests constitute “financial instruments” within the meaning of the MiFID (the Directive 2014/65/EU of 15 May 2014 on markets in financial instruments) and the LFS (the Law of financial services of 5 April 1993, as amended) which is implementing the MiFID in Luxembourg. None of the price quotations, information, news and research accessible on the website and the marketplace or shared through any other communication channels by ANote Music or its Affiliates constitute advice, recommendations or solicitation to any person in any jurisdiction to buy, sell or invest in any asset, royalty interests, intellectual property rights. Any decision made by a person to participate in ANote Music marketplace’s activities should be made on the basis that such an activity complies with any applicable local laws and regulations to which the user is subject to. The user should not access the ANote Music marketplace if such an activity does not comply with any applicable local laws and regulations to which the user is subject to. Keep in mind that purchasing royalty interests and/or intellectual property rights involves risk and you may lose the invested capital. The value of your royalty interests or intellectual property rights will fluctuate over time and you may gain or lose money. Past performance is not a guarantee of future returns, nor is it necessarily indicative of future performance. This disclaimer cannot disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of dealing with royalty interests and intellectual property rights. You should satisfy yourself that you fully understand the conditions which apply to such assets, our services and the potential risk exposures.
