King Croesus
Father of Currency
The Origin

From Ancient Lydia to Digital Future

In the 7th century BC, Croesus, King of Lydia, revolutionized commerce by issuing the world's first standardized gold and silver coins. Instead of barter, people could now exchange goods using a trusted medium of value—money was born. This invention sparked a revolution that shaped civilization itself.

Today, Lydia Coins continues this legacy merging the prestige of ancient Lydian innovation with cutting-edge blockchain technology.
